PEONIES

THE E.Y.TEAS CO., CENTERVILLE, INDIANA

We have been growing Peonies more than forty years, endeavoring always to obtain and grow the best varieties obtainable.

Peonies are growing in popularity and in beauty year by year. The older varieties, which graced the gardens of our forefathers, have, to a considerable extent, been supplanted by newer and more beautiful varieties, which are of recent development, and which constitute the family of modern peonies. They present an infinite variety of color, fragrance, form and habit.

The best time to plant peonies is in the fall, from September 1st until frost interferes with the work. They start root growth as soon as set. Mulch with coarse manure as soon as the ground freezes. Do not apply manure among the roots at planting.

GERMAN IRIS, OR FLEUR DE LIS.

No other hardy flowers have so many shades of rich, delicate colors as these, and few are so hardy, flourishing in almost any soil or condition. They do best planted in the fall, but will succeed if set early in spring. We went over our stock carefully during the blooming season, and recommend our varieties as true to name.
